Guide to Stars in Beverly Hills • 95 Addresses

Back when the maximum speed in most cities was 10 MPH, Beverly Hills was just seeing its first house built. (1907) The area was new and had no draw, so the sales remained slow until 1919. This is when Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford acquired land on Summit Drive and built the first mansion. It was finished by 1921 and nicknamed “Pickfair” by the press. Since the new owners brought a sense of glamour and notoriety to the area, other celebrities were soon to follow in their footsteps. The city began to grow in popularity and more mansions were built by an influx of movie stars.

With the momentum of the area’s development, came the Beverly Hills Hotel. It was finished by 1912 and was used to attract potential investors. The new hotel was big news and brought many visitors to the up and coming locale. By 1914, so many of the visitors were inclined to purchase land that the subdivision of Beverly Hills had a high enough population to incorporate and become an independent city.

Within a decade, another famous property was erected in the now flourishing city of Beverly Hills. Besides being a lavish, 22-room home, the estate became legendary for it’s resident bunnies. By now you have probably already guessed it – it’s the Playboy Mansion! Yes indeed, this iconic property has been a part of Beverly Hills ever since its construction was finished in 1927. This and many more legendary celebrity homes are listed below.
